ELEONORA MARSELLA

Journalist and Literary Agent, from Salento, class of '92 born in December in Maglie, the town of Aldo Moro. I have always read, spoken and written. I have been thinking since long before, but I have been analysing society since the last few years.

I have lived in Rome, Modena and Vercelli; I drive culture around Italy, I love travelling, cooking, running, communicating, reading, designing and realising.

I work in today's publishing world with emerging authors by choice, I read great classics by necessity. You will find me on the radio, on television, in the piazza, wherever there is value.

Be Strong Edizioni was born on a spring night in 2022. Sleepless, like few, I was taking care of plants together with Africa, my faithful Jack Russell.

I was reflecting on the publishing industry in recent years (I myself have been a literary agent for ten), thinking about the many problems my authors always encounter. And they are always the same. So I think: 'Hey I could take care of the book creation from the beginning'.

The words 'Be Strong Be Woman' have been on my skin for several seasons now. So Be Strong Edizioni is nothing but my vision of the world, a world made of paper, thoughts and all that remains: the essentials.

A tulip that becomes a book, a tulip that presents itself to the world with warmth, determination, a constant desire to change. So here we are (not alone!) with the small ambition to unearth talents and share them with everyone, all of us.

particular investigative acumen. However, he can count on a certain intuition and with the help of skilled collaborators and a bit of luck he always manages to complete his investigations.
